

Orchestra Victoria

PLANNED GIVING

A bequest made under your will is a practical way to provide meaningful financial support to help secure Orchestra Victoria. For many people this is the most significant philanthropic contribution they will ever make. It is a wonderful confirmation of your love for the orchestra which has been an important part of your life.

Funds received from bequests are invested in our Foundation creating perpetual income. The impact over the long term is transformational, it has shaped who we are today and will continue to shape the company we become tomorrow.

We invite you to consider nominating Orchestra Victoria in your estate planning.

WHY YOU NEED A WILL

A will gives you the opportunity to direct how your estate is to be distributed to the people and/or organisations important to you. In the absence of a will, the state decides who will receive your assets. A current and legal will minimises delays and expense at a challenging time. Creating a will ensures your plans are fulfilled.

"I have already written my will."

People change their wills for many reasons, particularly when their personal circumstances change. A minor change can be made by adding a codicil, or a new will may be written to ensure clarity of intention.

"But I have nothing to give."

Often people feel that they do not have the means during their lifetime to help others as much as they would like to. Leaving a planned gift in your estate will provide vital support to Orchestra Victoria without affecting your independence and self-sufficiency today.

PLANNED GIVING

RECOGNITION

While many do not seek recognition, we encourage everyone who has included Orchestra Victoria in their will to notify us. Notifying the Orchestra of your intention to make a gift through your estate ensures we can provide opportunities for you to enjoy insights into the life of the orchestra including celebratory soirees, functions and publications.

If you prefer to remain anonymous, please still get in touch so we can keep you in touch with our activities whilst respecting your anonymity. We celebrate and recognise Planned Giving donors in our programs, annual reports and website. Acknowledging Planned Givers in this way often inspires others to give. Most importantly, through your participation and generous commitment you will ensure Orchestra Victoria has a bright future of exceptional artistry.
